i.) PREMIUM ANH-VCO with MCTs

Virgin coconut oil when applied topically is probably the best treat you can give to your skin. You may not realize it but a lot of skin care products like creams and lotions do more harm than good as they are loaded with chemicals and cannot provide lasting benefits. Anti-wrinkle creams for example are mostly water. It expands the tissues of your skin which allows temporary elasticity and smoothness. Once the water evaporates, the wrinkles will return.

Virgin coconut oil is naturally healthy. It is made up of mainly Medium Chain Triglycerides (MCTs) in its natural form. MCTs are broken down into Medium Chain Fatty Acids (MCFAs). The fatty acids present in virgin coconut oil; namely, Lauric (C12), Capric (C10), and Caprylic (C8), are normal components of the skin and serve as a replacement for lost lipids in the skin barrier. It improves the skin condition, protects it from damage and heals skin diseases.

Benefits of using Virgin Coconut Oil (Premium ANH grade is the best quality):-

- The perfect moisturizer - It can be used to soften dry and scaly skin which is often susceptible to infections. It also prevents unsightly pimples and can be used as lip balm. Use it as a deodorant, a make-up remover, cuticle oil, wrinkle remover, acne cure and as an ingredient for a face or foot scrub.
- Keep your skin young-looking - It strengthens connective tissues so wrinkles and sagging of the skin is prevented. Dead cells on the outer surface of the skin are removed, making your skin glow. The medium chain fatty acids (MCFA) are easily absorbed into the skin tissue for tissue repair and protection.
- Prevents damaging effect of the sun - Its MCFA and antioxidant will prevent skin from sagging and eliminate wrinkles. Age spots and skin cancer usually caused by the sun's harmful rays is also avoided. Coconut oil is actually an ingredient of many suntan lotions.
- Antimicrobial properties help prevent bacterial and fungal infections - The MCTs when broken down into free fatty acids (MCFAs) can kill disease-causing organisms like bacteria, viruses, and fungi.
